

Better Half

Chris Trapper

There she was under the street lamps buzz
Thinking should she just go home or stay out tonight
She could see some friends stay til the house band ends
And in the end make all the wrongs feel right

'cause it's hard enough finding a true true love
She might take your bluff this time
If you make her laugh and see her better half
You can cut straight through the line
She will be just fine

Now she's at the door where so many nights before
It seemed like half her life might've passed her by
From across the room he'd better say hi soon
'cause with or without you she will be just fine

'cause it's hard enough finding a true true love
She might take your bluff this time
If you make her laugh and see her better half
You can cut straight through the line
She will be just fine

'cause it's hard enough finding a true true love
She might take your breath this time
If you make her laugh and see her better half
You can cut straight through the line
She will be just fine