Chris Whitley

The ground gives as you go With all them secrets that you know As if to give nothing away Of the signals you obey You're weightless as a child Falling from above Helpless to your size Lonelier than God Footsteps, empty room As if a temple or a tomb The bed gives where you lay As if to give nothing away Of the power you betray You're weightless as a child Falling from above Helpless to your size Lonelier than God Lonelier than God Falling from above You're weightless as a child