

A Lot Like Love

Cimorelli

Driving home, replaying all the things he said
I thought I'd feel different than this
I can't explain or ignore this emptiness

But it felt right in the moment
When he looked in my eyes
It almost felt like someone cared
And when he held me tight
It felt like someone was there for me

And I, I wish I could say that he stayed
But he runs every time
Like that he's gone
And I know it wasn't much
And I knew it from his touch

There's no truth in his eyes, but I want this to be real so bad
And I know that's not enough
And I held on for too long
It was broken and wrong, it was nothing at all
But it felt a lot like love

And I can feel him add my name to his list
I'm nothing more than a number
But I'll admit, I'd still do anything
Just to feel that feeling once more
Cause when he looked in my eyes
I swear he set my world on fire

And when he held me tight, it felt like I was the only one
And I, I wish I could say that he stayed but he runs every time
Like that he's gone
And I know it wasn't much
And I knew it from his touch

There's no truth in his eyes, but I want this to be real so bad
And I know that's not enough
And I held on for too long
It was broken and wrong, it was nothing at all
But it felt a lot like love

If it was love, he wouldn't've left me lonely
And if it was love, he would've cared that he hurt me
They say love is patient, love is kind
But in this love I'm slowly losing my mind

I lose my mind

When he looked in my eyes, it almost felt like someone cared
And I know it wasn't much
And I knew it from his touch

There's no truth in his eyes, but I want this to be real so bad
And I know that's not enough
And I held on for too long
It was broken and wrong, it was nothing at all

But it felt a lot like love [3x]
