

Sweet Days Of Grace

Cindy Morgan

Rain falls and then the night calls
And then the hard times begin to wash away
And sun shines and brings a new light where we can
Recline in the sweet, sweet days of grace
Deep inside the world fear treads
And hearts cry out loud
Shadows shifting 'round
And we fight
Dancing with out doubt
But darkness runs from the light
And mercy comes and shines
In His perfect time, and
Rain falls and then the night calls
And then the hard times begin to wash away
And sun shines and brings a new light where we can
Recline in the sweet, sweet days of grace
Falling to our knees
Blind faith, the only place we see
That You're never far away
Your steps, the place we long to be
No way to right all the wrongs
Don't have to know all the words
'Cause You are the song, and
Rain falls and then the night calls
And then the hard times begin to wash away
And sun shines and brings a new light where we can
Recline in the sweet, sweet days of grace
Under the water fall, catching all our pain
Under His gaze of grace
Our tears turn to sweet rain
Rain falls and then the night calls
And then the hard times begin to wash away
And sun shines and brings a new light where we can
Recline in the sweet, sweet days of grace