

I heard exactly what you said
But I know that he slept in our bed
You should really take more care
Because all it took was a single hair

How would you, how could you not think that I'd realize?
You must know you're just so terrible at telling lies
And did you really think I might
Not find out where you were last night?
Believe me, darling, it wasn't hard
When you paid for the meal on your credit card

No, don't flip, here's a tip: all it needs is a little thought
This will surprise you, but I don't want you to get caught
That's a price that I'll pay to stop you going away
Keep telling your lies; I won't criticize if it means you will stay

And you should probably tell him not to phone
Unless you're sure that you are going to be alone
This hanging up without him saying a word
Was maybe fine just once, but it's becoming absurd

No don't flip, here's a tip: all it needs is a little thought
This will surprise you, but I don't want you to get caught
That's a price that I'll pay to stop you going away
Keep telling your lies; I won't criticize if it means you will stay
That's a price that I'll pay to stop you going away
Keep telling your lies; I won't criticize if it means you will stay
That's a price that I'll pay to stop you going away
Keep telling your lies; I won't criticize if it means you will stay
