

The Day That I Stop Loving You

Cliff Richard

If you could see you through my eyes
Those doubts would never cross your mind
I wouldn't say forever
If with all my heart I didn't mean it
From now until eternity
Girl believe me I'm not leaving

The day that I stop loving you
Could never come to be
I know that even if the sun and moon
By chance collide
Or space and time should split in two
There will never be the day
That I stop loving you

And in this world so full of change
One truth will constantly remain
I will always be here
So you never need to even ask me
Nothing else compares
To the sweet taste of everlasting

What can I say
They're only words
And words could never be enough
To show you all I have to give
As long as we live
We will love without end

The day that I stop loving you
Could never come to be
I know that even if the sun and moon
By chance collide
Or space and time should split in two
There will never be the day
There will never be the day
There will never be the day
That I stop loving you
That I stop loving you
That I stop loving you
