

Till I'm Home Again

Cliff Richard

Just another lonely trail
Heading through the pouring rain
I am lost in time and space
Remembering your face

Just another winding road
I don't know where it will go
All I know is that
It takes me far from you

If I had my way
I'd be there beside you today

Till I'm home again
Till I see the morning in your eyes
And though the world may spin
Here inside my heart I'm only half alive
Till I'm home again, oh, till I'm home again

When I'm high above the clouds
Or alone inside the crowd
I'm a million miles from where I want to be
And oh, day runs into night
And this room has run out of light

Till I'm home again
Till I see the morning in your eyes
And though the world may spin
Here inside my heart I'm only half alive
Till I'm home again

So tell me you will wait for me
You're the star on my horizon
Keep the fire warm for me
I'll be back before the first snow fall

Until I'm home again
Till I see the morning in your eyes
Though the world may spin
Here inside my heart, I'm only half alive
Till I'm home again, oh, till I'm home again

Till I'm home again
Wait for me
Till I'm home again
Till I'm home again

Wait for me
Till I'm home again
Till I'm home again
