

Cathedral

Cocoon

I came from the valley and you came from the sea.
You smelt like the sand.

How far up the river
would you go, would you go, to meet me again ?

And I build a cathedral
With the shells that you hid in a hole in a tree.

And I loved the words you said
When I told you what the ravens sing in my dreams.

You pushed on my heart
every night and every day to keep me alive.

And you kissed my mouth and I learned to walk and I learned to try.

Oh can you hear the horses ?
It means the season changes,
it means the season changes.

When the river overflows
I'll run to the bridges,
I'll run to the bridges.

And for now don't be afraid
If the sun never rises,
the sun never rises.

There's a time to let it grow,
A time to let it slow
And a time to let it go.
