Cold War Kids

I've been silent partner, I've been your shrink I have heard your sad look misfortune speech" But I'll have sympathy when you get off your seat Before this bitter mess becomes a disease I have cracked the code on this old machine Ten thousands hours to be released But I've been wondering: why can't you see? That the door opens up and go where it leads I have been waiting For you to find That all of this could be yours Be yours tonight Could be yours! You were packing up but I gave you a bed You would rather crash then go straight ahead I wrote this years ago but it's finished today With the help of a friend who has feelings to say And I have been waiting But you need a sign That all of this could be yours Be yours tonight I have been patient But you've got to try Then all of this could be yours Be yours tonight Could be yours! All this could be yours And all this could be yours And all this could be yours And all this could be yours, could be yours All this could be yours
