It's like a jungle sometime Liars thieves, live's of crime School shootings, riots, looting War on the streets, what are we doing I ain't the one to ask for change What the fuck, you're twice my age Does it hurt to swallow pride Down your throat Or have you lost all hope Racial tension within the city I live Fed up with no more love to give They feel like they were born to lose And the other side Could never walk in their shoes But maybe they're right Maybe this is just black and white Cause everyday it's getting harder to cope And I don't see no fucking hope
