

A Simple Song

Colin Hay

I do like a simple song
Where everyone can sing along
It doesn't matter where you're from
Most people like a simple song

It sure is sweet to fall in love
Feels like a gift from up above
Can't seem to ever get enough
Yeah it sure is cool to fall in love

But things don't often stay the same
She says she wants to give you back your name
It's never simple who's to blame
And it always gets so complicated

One day you wake up on your own
If I had kids they'd all be grown
Of all the people I have known
True friends there's not too many

But I don't want to bring you down
And I still get to play from town to town
There still is magic all around
And when I hit the ground I'm running

I don't want to die alone
Where I cannot reach the phone
In my multi-story home
No I don't want to die alone

It's not preyin' on my mind
But I do think about it from time to time
And it's not likely to happen soon
But you may not even see it coming

So help me sing this simple song
Where everyone can sing along
It doesn't matter where you're from
One day we're here and then we're gone
