

Sky Is A Poisonous Garden

Concrete Blonde

The stars above shine down below
The fever you hold on this night deathly cold
I can feel from this side of the door
He can feel Eleanor

He said, sun don't rise
He said, sun don't shine
He said, don't bring tomorrow to justify tonight
The moon is full and the stars are bright
And the sky is a poisonous garden tonight.

Sip your tequila
Give me some time to unlearn all I've learned for the spring to unwind
and then came your sweet gentle mouth
I began to move mine
They knew with the dawn
They knew with the day They knew what they had would be young naked prey and attacked from all sides by a world filled with poison and hate

Out of this world
Out of this time
Out of control and their out of their minds
The moon is full and the stars are bright
and the sky is a poisonous garden tonight

Eleanor trembles, Eleanor moans Somehow, this body is someone she always has known She cries tears on his chest
Oh so silent and slow

She said please don't go (Please don't go)
He said please don't go
And she sighed and she died in his arms
And he cried nevermore
The moon is full and the stars are bright
and the sky is a poisonous garden tonight