

In Light Of Silver And Black

Conditions

Beckoned silent by a shift in light, I felt a change
Everything I thought I knew was simply lifted from my veins
There was surrender, there were no tears
But my broken face would shed a thousand years

This is the sound that my heart made
Beating faster, faster, forcing me to lift my head
This is the sound of perfection

I buried my broken heart in you
So safe from over-exposure
And my eyes closed from comfort in you
Pull me closer

And your words encircle my head like a halo

This is the sound that my heart made
Beating faster, faster, forcing me to lift my head
This is the sound of perfection

We ran for the doorway
The constellations wait above
What better ceiling for two crazy kids in love
We thought it perfect
We knew everything was gonna be alright
Just look at our footsteps
Just look at the impact we're making tonight