

The Day Before

Conflict

So what if we manage to stop cruise cruising in, will it make a ny fucking difference?

To the inevitable countdown to world war three, the power monge r's decision

Will it be our lifelong stance, or our only chance, to prevent our world's destruction?

Will it be?

You fucked old Yankee crony git
You screwed up bastard commie shit
You evil hag with blood stained hands Fuck you, fucking hang...

Fuck it, I just can't see any point in singing yet another wank y war song... the accepted target... can't see no point in mout hing off about atomic power... they know the risk involved, but still freely fuck with our lives... you know what they're doin g yet still you let them... you think it will never happen... p ush it to the corner of them mind and forget it... for it's so much more comforting to 'relax' and don't do it...

Alternative to this, the masses join the CND
And fly it's helpless protest banner on demos Listen to the whining wanky labour party
And wait for them to annihilate the fucking lot of us Pathetic! You fucking bunch of jokers
When you hear the four-minute warning "It's too fucking late "
See your family and friends perish - the eyes melting - the ski n shrivelling - blood boiling - bomb, death, listen, now

There's one minute left in the game to play Since that day in forty-five we have never had a say Was it a solution to combat the right?
Or just to stay ahead and never done fight Thatcher's plaything in the name Manhattan Another Hiroshima for her to flatten
The protest signs they are spread across the earth

But will our protests pay their worth?