Gonna Take A Lie

The Connells

fever in a blistser out, you know it will simmer until its cold even in a fleeting range the suffering fills us full are you going to win me around again play that sound like you always do its going to take a lie nothing else will do its going to take a lie as if it really matters its going to take a lie this time I want to see your face when its all through why not think of this as pure intention why not think of this as pulling through will you ever win me round again play that sound like you always do its going to take a lie nothing else will do its going to take a lie as if it really matters its going to take a lie this time I want to see your face when its all through Your never going to bring me round again play that sound like you always do its going to take a lie nothing else will do its going to take a lie as if it really matters its going to take a lie this time I don't want to see your face when its all through its going to take a lie nothing else will do its going to take a lie as if it really matters its going to take a lie this time I want to see your face
