

I Know You're Going Away

Connie Smith

I know the heartaches are coming cause I know you're going away
There's no gladness in your voice when you say darling
There's no sweetness in your lips when they meet mine
There's no feeling in your arms when they're around me
How much plainer could you say it's goodbye time
I know the heartaches are coming I know the skies will turn grey
I know the the tears will start falling cause I know you're going away

Hearts that were friends now are strangers eyes that could see now are blind
Only tomorrows of sorrow from the day that you leave me behind
I know the heartaches are coming
