Always And Forever

Cory Morrow

i need you cause i love you always and forever and i love you cause I've known you always and forever well time it flys and time it runs by and time will run out on us soon your eyes filled with tears from fighting your fears searching for who you are and i will be here waiting my dear always and forever i need you cause i love you always and forever well i love you cause I've known you always and forever the moon and stars and the sun streaches far shining for all to veiw eternaly bound they light up the ground never once being untrue and you are for me a light which i need always and forever i need you cause i love you always and forever and i love you cause I've known you always and forever always and forever
