Memories Of A Broken Heart

Crown the Empire

As I stare into these ruins made by man I tremble as I realize it's the end More and more I wonder what we could have done But instead we wage a war that can't be won Yeah instead we wage a war that can't be won

I stand on the ash of all I've ever loved Memories of a broken heart Now I'm alone in the dark.

I know there's a way out when all hope is gone Find your light in a new dawn But there's no way to do this on our own

I search for solace in this waste That I once called home But my attempts of piecing life together leaves me alone I can't repair what's been done When the sky is as black as the ground that I walk on

But I can't give up on this I have to wonder what we could have done I have to wonder But instead we wage a war that can't be won

I stand on the ash of all I've ever loved Memories of a broken heart Now I'm alone in the dark.

I know there's a way out when all hope is gone Find your light in a new dawn But there's no way to do this on our own.

You think that this is the end? You're wrong This is the start of a new generation

I stand on the ash of all I've ever loved Memories of a broken heart Now I'm alone in the dark

I know there's a way out when all hope is gone Find your light in a new dawn But there's no way to do this on our own.