

Dying in the rain

Crystal Eyes

By moonlight we carry the flame but the nightfall won't take away the pain No shadows awaits on the road still the echo of yesterday remains

On a cold and misty journey in the silence of the woods we are chasing great illusions forever in her realm

She's the lady of the twilight and the only one who knows When the trees of sorrow whisper no one is alive

The eyes of tomorrow are blind no matter how the wind cries
The sighs of the forest are loud
A sound that never ends

We sail away again on a broken dream We've paid the price and more but still we are not free

We are dying in the rain
Silent dying in the rain Look out!

Like a million tears of anger
the unspoken fly away
On the lonely road to nowhere no words are allowed

The wise have abandoned their souls to wander naked and cold The proud are invisible fools whose failure never ends

Dying in the rain
We are dying in the rain
