

Into the light

Crystal Eyes

When the morning has broken can you see the great open sky, or are you afraid to enter life?

From your world's obligations
I have struggled to get away, and now I'm finally free

From the land of order I'm hiding
In the hand of shelter I roam There's a light beyond the mountains, and there's where I go

When the Maker rock the boat the unbelievers dive together Tonight we celebrate our never-ending flight
And together side by side we run into the light

I'm a needle in your eye I'm the one you can never be You're a dutiful drudge lost in time

There is no use denying labour and guilt will always rule your predictable realm

There are preachers among the fools spinning tales of laws and rules It's a language spoken in vain
I will never learn to take the blame
