

Fade Out

Custard

Crawling on the floor
Seen it all before
Like an old time movie they transmit once more

Again it was me
Who lost reality
Suppose you think that I'm a nut and I surrender to you

I know I made mistakes
Mr. Perfect is someone else
It makes me sick to hear the story again and again

My destiny's not in your hands
It breaks my spine before I bow
I'm not your property - my dignity's too strong
Something buried deep inside
Hard as granite, cold as ice
No way to break it in my endless despite

It was you who darkened my light
But I knew I'll never surrender
It might be true that something in me died
It's irretrievable and lost forever

You tried to bend me
Tried to humble me
Stick your education where the sun never shines

I think I'm old enough
Now take your hands off me
Go looking for another dog you can take for a walk

Didn't you yet realize
That you're standing all alone
Your friends are fakes because they know that you're bad to the bone
Okay, just go ahead
But call a spade a spade
I guess I never met someone who was as selfish as you

I know you need somebody who cares about the words that you say
I know it's hard to find a man like me who follows your way
A million times you'll eat the dust before you learn that your pressure
Causes counter - pressure
