

Throwing Your Voice

Damien Jurado

I've got news for you, we all know
Stop acting like you've never heard this before
Blood on your hands leaving your mark
It's when you cross the line where the trouble starts

Michael, you had a voice, learned to lie
It was the day that I fell apart that we almost died
I would like to think people change
But I've seen no evidence or the point it made

You can come back when you need
You can come back when you need

Michael, I've had enough, it's time to go
Make very clear, don't want you here
You can throw your voice all you like
I don't want to see you return anytime

Shake off your doubt, grab a hold
Sometimes the hardest part is letting you go
You can always come back when you need
I'll leave the light on, leave the light on

You can come back when you need
You can come back when you need
You can come back when you need
You can come back when you need
