

The First Impression

Dan Hartman

Young enough to believe every feeling is true
First impression colors everything you do

Stolen kisses in the darkness
Finding somewhere to be alone
Secret places we could run to
No one else could ever know

Making love in the shadows
Out of time, out of sight
Just the same as we did on the first night
The same as the first night

Young enough to believe every feeling is true
Everything I feel, and the first impression
(Colors everything you do) colors everything that I feel for you
Young enough to believe every feeling is true
I believe it's true, the first impression
It's what I'm thinking about when I'm loving you

The dawn breaks through and finds us
In a moment caught my surprise
Holding on tight to keep out the light
And keeping the mystery

Won't let go, can't let go
It's my true confession
It was the light on your lip
Not the sound of the words you were saying
The sound of a first impression

Young enough to believe every feeling is true
Every moment that I'm with you, the first impression
(Colors everything you do) everything I feel, everything I feel for you
Young enough to believe every feeling is true
I believe in the first impression

Oh
Take it easy now, try to hold back
Nothing lasts forever, you know that
But you would never know it by the way we're riding tonight

Whoa-whoa-whoa
Young enough to believe every feeling is true
Ooh, every feeling between me and you,
The first impression, (the first impression), colors everything you do
When I'm making love to you, it's the first impression, impression helps you
Making love

Young enough to believe every feeling is true
First impression colors everything you do
Young enough to believe every feeling is true
