

Getting To The Point

Dan Seals

How many lies have you told just to keep me around?
And how many hearts have you broke in the lost and found?
Oh, you came to me
Like a storm from out of the sea
Was it so wrong to try and make our love last endlessly?

And I was getting to the point
Of thinking you were coming back again
And we'd start all over again

I felt misled
When I heard that people renew
And every time I turned my back
You were so untrue
Oh, what kind of love do you need to be satisfied?
And why do I miss you so
With all of your love and all of your lies

And I was getting to the point
Of thinking you were coming back again
And we'd start all over again
Yes, I was getting to the point
Of thinking you were coming back again
Coming back again
And we'd start all over again

You left me alone
Without a warning
Again, you left me alone
Without a smile
And why does our love have to be
Why does our love have to be so haunting?
And what do I have to do
To make it worth your while?

And I was getting to the point
Of thinking you were coming back again
Coming back again
And we'd start all over again
Yes, I was getting to the point
Of thinking you were coming back again
Coming back again
And we'd start all over again

And I was getting to the point
Of thinking you were coming back again
Coming back again
And we'd start all over

Thinking you were coming back
Thinking you were coming back