No God

Darkest Hour

There's no salvation In a world where you worship proven fiction And no redemption for a life of servitude You bow and you heed Unhallowed command Your only care is the money we gain It's the same place A hollow escape A palace of concrete and glass Keep waiting, keep waiting For no god To erase you No god To make you fall to your knees There's blood on these pages And the war inside your head Is with yourself Through the ages, through every form of "Hell" It's the same face A hollow escape A palace of concrete and glass Keep waiting, keep waiting For no god To consume you No god To bear your burden No god To use you No qod There is only illusion The usurper of life It'll bleed every last drop And it'll suck all the breath out of you And leave you forsaken There's no god To release you There's no god To make you fall down to your knees There's no god To deceive you There's no god To bear your burden There's no god There's no god There's no god There is only illusion
