

My heart is crushed
It's lying there and growing cold
Summer's sunset falls
Sunlight flees away and dews of night arise
Rainy autumn moves my heart
Flowers welking welk my joy Clouds come rolling over they depress me, overrun me
They overshadow my heart
Autumn comes apace, a last warm glance sighing to me
Now grey veils between the earth and sea
Birdless branches in the wind
Leaves they found their death in coldness Naked trees in the frost of night yearning for the sun again and again
Waters laying still in transparent fog Lakes of blue covered with ice to sleep their winter-sleep