Desperate

David Archuleta

Desperate, desperate You're reaching out And no one hears you cry You're freaking out again 'Cause all your fears Remind you another dream has come undone You feel so small and lost like you're the only one You wanna scream 'cause you're Desperate

You want somebody, just anybody To lay their hands on your soul tonight You want a reason to keep believin' That someday you're gonna see the light

You're in the dark There's no one left to call And sleep's your only friend but even sleep Can't hide you from all those tears And all the pain and all the days You wasted pushin' them away It's your life, it's time you face it

You want somebody, just anybody To lay their hands to your soul tonight You want a reason to keep believin' That someday you're gonna see the light 'Cause you're desperate; desperate 'Cause you're desperate; and now

You know that things have gotta change You can't go back you'll find your way And day by day You start to come alive

You want somebody, just anybody To bring some peace on your soul tonight You want a reason to keep believin' That someday you're gonna see the light You want somebody, just anybody To lay their hands on your soul tonight You want a reason to keep believin' That someday you're gonna see the light 'Cause you're desperate, desperate 'Cause you're desperate, tonight Oh desperate, so desperate Tonight, tonight Desperate, desperate
