Was walking through the counters of a national concern And a cash machine was spitting by my shoulder

And I saw the multitude of faces, honest, rich and clean
As the merchandise exchanged and money roared
And a woman hot with worry slyly slipped a tin of stewing steak
Into the paper bag at her side
And her face was white with fear in case her actions were obser ved

So she closed her eyes to keep her conscience blind

Crying

"God knows I'm good
God knows I'm good
God knows I'm good
God may look the other way today

God knows I'm good
God knows I'm good
God knows I'm good
God may look the other way today"

Then she moved toward the exit clutching tightly at her paper b ag

Perspiration trickled down her forehead

And her heart it leapt inside her as the hand laid on her shoul der

She was led away bewildered and amazed

Through her deafened ears the cash machines were shrieking on the counter

As her escort asked her softly

For her name

And a crowd of honest people rushed to help a tired old lady Who had fainted to the whirling Wooden floor

Crying

"God knows I'm good God knows I'm good God knows I'm good Surely God won't look The other way

God knows I'm good
God knows I'm good
God knows I'm good
Surely God won't look
The other way"
