

Still Hurts

David Nail

Beneath that banner class of '95
Middle of the celebration on the fifty yard line, you broke the news
Plans and dreams fell to the ground
Tossed aside like your cap and gown
There're so confused

It's all for the best it's easier said than done
It sounds so crazy, but after all this time
You're still the one

It still kills me when I think about
The love that I still live without
We came so close to going all the way
I could have sworn you were the one
What's meant to be is all undone
Even though I made it through the worst
It still hurts

What a surprise seeing you again
Fumbling words, shaking hands like it's the first time
It's all going great it's easier said than done.
Walking away again thinking as of today
You're still the one

It still kills me when I think about
The love that I still live without
We came so close to going all the way
I could have sworn you were the one
What's meant to be is all undone
Even though I made it through the worst
It still hurts

I could have sworn you were the one
What's meant to be is all undone
Even if the hardest one's the first
Even though I made it through the worst
It still hurts
