It seems that I remember I dreamed a thousand dreams. We'd face the days together, No matter what they'd bring. A strength inside like I'd never known, Opened the door to life and let it go. This sun may shine forever, Upon the back of love. A kingdom raised from ashes, And held within your arms. And should the rain break through the trees, We'll find a shelter there and never leave. I'll run to you, nothing stands between us now. Nothing I can lose. This light inside can never die. Another world just made for two. I'll swim the seas inside with you, And like the waves, without a sound, I'll never let you down. Upon a wave of summer, A hilltop paved with gold, We shut our eyes and make The promises we hold. A will to guide and see us through, I'd do it all again because of you. I'll run to you, nothing stands between us now, Nothing I can lose. This light inside can never die. Another world just made for two. I'll swim the seas inside with you, And like the waves, without a sound, I'll never let you down. I'd tear my very soul to make you mine.
