

Alive And Immortal?

Dawn Golden

Ten times a thousand years ago
The gods from the stars came below
Completed the creation of man
The time of progress began

Superior knowledge familiar to us
Is regaining power from Sirius or Mars

Once, when the 12th planet crashed with the earth
A great flood drowned human wisdom and mirth

Only few survived the tragedy
All remains where dragged across the sea

Encoded in all fairy-tales and myths
The heritage of the ancient ones still lives

Tomorrow's dreams are memories from the past
The cosmic principles will everlast
But mystified fragments won't turn the page
Distorted echoes from the age of Atlantis

Ignorance is all I can see
Dumbness our true entity
Time is not ripe for enlightenment
We can't use the key in our hand
