Doomed To Failure

Dead To Fall

They met in the dark of the night For a Final time For the great showdown Two dreamers deciding which path to take One for their future One for the present "I was standing strong until you showed your face to ruin and r avage everything we've planned." "Your dream is empty with its promise of self fulfillment. The future holds so much more for us." One of us will die before this is over The sword of vengeance glistens in the moonlight Her words fall silent as he makes his attack "Now we will find out who truly holds the power." "I'm waiting for you to relinquish your hold." "There is no room for us, so you must be destroyed." "Then I'm afraid this is unavoidable." His blade plunges deep Cutting down to the core And with her last gasp for breath All her dreams and aspirations fade She pleads for him to see For him to see the truth And with one final slice she's gone forever No more dreams No more tears She's gone Bleed for nothing now for no one hears your cries He stands there victorious and alone Suffering through what he himself has made "Without her, there is no point to my fight." He sees it all as it slowly begins to fade One of us will die before this is over He realizes now, without her Live loses point Without the battle, without their struggle Life loses point He has no purpose now Life loses point As everything fades, Everything fades Life loses point The struggle was keeping us both alive