

Happiness

Deaf Havana

I've been dragging out my love over 13 months right now
It's been a year and I believe in who I've found
I've been trying out this thing they call happiness for a while

But I never truly cleared my cluttered mind

Because I knew that you'd get sick of all the stupid things I did

And how I never think far enough ahead

Cause my drinking takes its toll on everybody here I meet, especially you

It's like you're the generate disease

Because it eats away at everything

But mostly love

The strength we build between us

And all the time it takes to build the trust right back up

Isn't worth a single drop of glass of anything

And I don't want anything

I've got a liver full of toxins and barely full of fire

And a tendency to lose myself for a while

Cause all the countless nights I spent cowering in bed

Cause I can't fight the voice that rings inside my head

Because it eats away at everything

But mostly love

The strength we build between us

And all the time it takes to build the trust right back up

Isn't worth a single drop of glass of anything

And I don't want anything, but you

Because it eats away at everything

But mostly love

The strength we build between us

And all the time it takes to build the trust right back up

Isn't worth a single drop of glass of anything

I don't want anything

Because it eats away at everything

But mostly love

The strength we build between us

And all the time it takes to build the trust right back up

Isn't worth a single drop of glass of anything

And I don't want anything, but you
