

Little White Lies

Deaf Havana

Lately I've been wondering how these words would sound
If they were sung out loud instead of written down Because this could be a letter if I could find the pen and paper r

To tell you how, I'll only let you down

If I had any heart left, I'd give it all to you
To make up for the time spent, not telling the truth

Now all the hours weeks and months seem to merge right into one
I lost track of where I'd been 'Cause I've been chasing my own tail and running in circles for so long
I need to find myself again

If I had any heart left, I'd give it all to you
To make up for the time spent, not telling the truth

I've compiled a list of all the places I wanna see before I die
, but I know I won't

I always drink too much and never sleep enough
I'm still a liar and I think I'll always be, I'll always...

If I had any heart left, I'd give it all to you
To make up for the time spent, not telling the truth
