Soulless

Death Angel

WE arrive, and are blinded by twisted rubble, and piercing light Screaming sounds of the sirens Rip through the air on this sleepless night

Take this boy, and remind him Just how fragile his un-sewn life His daily dose of destruction Sleeps with his gun, his surrogate wife

Soulless ghost in the air Helpless feeling of despair Broken Body, Scarred mind They're Soulless

Men, women, and children
Huddle together, or stand and fight
Enemies, or our allies
Can't tell the difference. He's blind with fright

He reads letters from Mother Shares photographs from another life Falling to friendly fire Today was this heroes final fight

Promised there's an end
Just around the bend
Lost another friend
Left Soulless
Soulless ghost in the air
Helpless feeling of despair
Broken Body, Scarred mind
They're Soulless

Left Shameless Left Nameless Left Faithless Left Soulless

Soulless ghost in the air Helpless feeling of despair Broken Body, Scarred mind

They're Soulless

Left Sightless Left Mindless Left Heartless Left Hopeless

Gone insane endless pain
Enter the room to find there's no one left
Guiltless time Poisoned mind
Mocking clocks they chime. You're in traction
Wasted days Again betrayed
A once honored hero now stains the mattress
No one calls Blood stained walls
Mother needle holds you to her breast
Skin, and Bones
Your life is left Soulless
