Mentally Blind

You see your vision and no one else's Your every word filled with sarcasm Crucify people with invisible knowledge Verbal destruction with each compulsion

We will see where you go The future for you is nowhere Every minute a cliche of your kind Too much to say from a person with no respect Your accusations you will regret From the mentally blind come ideas that are poison Take away the power, a shallow person you will find.

What would you do without your pathetic narrowminded approach to Life, that reflects your lack of abilities

Your opinions are self-destructive Despair is your gain, delight is corruption Destined to fall prey to your stories, Creating problems for your consumption
