Silence in Your Eyes

Deine Lakaien

Step by step the greyness creeps Along the roads that lead to me I am sipping cups of bitter tea Cold are the winds that come to me From a land without no tree

As we watch our neighbour's face Careful nurses come to mind Peaceful motions of an old nun's arm Try to choke a lonely star Storyteller's gone too far

Pure ice melts in trembling heads Can't get back the prepaid rent Now and then we all cannot decide I can see I can see I can see the silence in your eyes

Memories come and disappear I hear songs of love my dear Who is flying over us tonight Tries to hush us into sleep Into silence falling deep

Fire burns but then they slowly die In our room in our room Where I can see The silence in you eyes
