

Keep Her While She's There

Del McCoury

Well I learned a long long time ago
That a woman's kind of strange
As long as you tell her the truth
She'll give you anything
But if you break her heart tear it apart
She'll set your world on fire
Cause the only thing that a woman hates
Is a dirty, cheatin' liar

Then you'll have to get her back
You'll have beg her please
You'll have to apologize
And get down on your knees
So get up now, pay your check
Point your pickup home
If you keep her while she's there
You won't have to get her back when she's gone

So the next time that you feel temptation tuggin' at your sleeve
Remember that her intuition has to be believed
And even though your lips might say that you've been with a friend
Something in your eyes will give away just where you've been
