

Light Your Light

Delerium

Open your eyes, he's never gonna change
He went through rough things in his life
Just get out of his range
I can't just sit here and watch
How he hurts you again and again
How can you still let him touch you?
You mistook him for something he's not
And now it's time to wake up

Light your light, Light your light
The right one is waiting out there
Light your light, Light your light
And then someone will truly care

You tend to find excuses
For all the things he does
But look at your bruises
We all have a choice
You mistook him for something he's not
And now it's time to wake up

Light your light, Light your light
The right one is waiting out there
Light your light, Light your light
And then someone will truly care

The damage is done
Your daydream is all gone
There's nothing left worth to hold on to

And though it hurts to ignite
When you put so much effort in this
But it's time to look bright
You mistook him for something he's not
And now it's time to wake up

Light your light, Light your light
The right one is waiting out there
Light your light, Light your light
And then someone will truly care

Then someone out there
Then someone out there
Will truly care.
