

Every Little Thing

Delirious?

Everything must change
There's a mirror showing me the ugly truth
These bones they ache with holy fire
But I've got nothing to give
Just a life to live
If your world is without colour
I will carry you, if you carry me
Every little thing's gonna be alright
Every little thing's gonna be alright
There's no one else to blame
I live my life between the fire and the flame
I've built my house where the ocean meets the land
It's time to live again
Pull my dreams out of the sand
Let your world be full of colour
I will carry you, if you carry me
Every little thing's gonna be alright
Every little thing's gonna be alright
When it's all falling down on you
You're crying out but you're breaking in two
When it's all crashing down on you
When there's nothing you can do
There is Someone who can carry you
Every little thing, every little thing
Every little thing's gonna be alright
Every little thing's gonna be alright ...