The Shepherd And The Moon

Demis Roussos

Do you know the story of the shepherd Who'd turn and took the river moon in his arms Listen to the story
Mainly if you cannot read
Of the man who loved the woman

You can tuck it up in your mind You would like to catch the moonlight But you know the thing is not right For all of us have some secrets to hide

Do you know the story of the shepherd Who'd turn and took the river moon in his arms Listen to the story
Mainly if you cannot read
Of the man who loved the woman

The woman was a sting in the thorn You will get the moon for the horn You'll try to catch it and you'll drown Of the moon you were much too full

Nowadays people of the mountains say
That the gods put the moon high up in the sky
So that the men might not be tempted to steal it

Do you know the story of the shepherd Who'd turn and took the river moon in his arms Listen to the story Mainly if you cannot read Of the man who loved the woman

Write it in the depths of your mind For today the moon is too high Shepherd tried to catch a sunrise You might be more lucky if you try

Do you know the story of the shepherd Who'd turn and took the river moon in his arms Listen to the story
Mainly if you cannot read
Of the man who loved the woman

La, la, la ...
