

I Will Fail You

Demon Hunter

These quiet words they carry me away,
returning, they keep coming back.
In idle thoughts and hollow cut-aways,
disarm me, no will to attack.

Though the sorrow and fear
they may depart you today.

I will fail you, of that I'm sure.
I will remind you of the pain forevermore.
And when my sins are just a memory, faith restored,
I will fail you to the core.

Lost in the shadow of an endless grace,
relentless, my reign is unbound.
In this abandon I will devastate,
dismember, till agony's found.

Though the sorrow and fear
they may depart you today.

I will fail you, of that I'm sure.
I will remind you of the pain forevermore.
And when my sins are just a memory, faith restored,
I will fail you to the core.

I know they prey upon me,
I feel them just beyond my door.

I will fail you, of that I'm sure.
I will remind you of the pain forevermore.
And when my sins are just a memory, faith restored,
I will fail you to the core.

I will fail you, of that I'm sure.
I will remind you of the pain forevermore.
And when my sins are just a memory, faith restored,
I will fail you to the core.