

These Rails Will Bleed

Derdian

Here downstairs in the underground
Nobody can notice him
He seems to be invisible
There's obsession in his eyes

Walking back and forth all day
Touching nervous his soiled tie
Wondering how could be his life
If he had kept that fucking job

Once I was there and he told me about his life
Shining light in his eyes
And a smile to show me his pride
So self-assured
He said: "I take all life can give Every joy, every good I've deserved"
But now there is no sign of all the previous pride

And he told me

'Man, these rails will bleed
What does life mean?
I've got no more will to live
Buried under a grave of broken dreams
I'm a victim of reality'

Fills all his mind, expands like a fire
One way to escape from this misery
Out of the gallery the lights of the train
Are getting closer to save him from pain

And he told me
'Man, these rails will bleed
What does life mean?
I've got no more will to live
Buried under a grave of broken dreams
I'm a victim of reality'
