The Waves And The Seas

Devil Sold His Soul

Taking back what we couldn't see through the smoke as the edges fall But we never have a clear route to choose and now we have only one Broken light filters through the cracks It's all the future has ever offered us But we don't need faith as we fall from the sun we collide

All paths lead to the grave This won't be the end We're stuck in this lonely abyss where's the other side? And we don't hold back as we push through the waves and the seas Never good enough for them It was never as hard for them all But if only we could push through these waves We fall from the sun, we collide

Fate fortunes the brave the harder you fight; less to regret Hopeless and shaking; take my hand

You don't take sides it's frozen; a lasting abyss The winds pull down a faultless clear sky You can't take the glow and beauty away The direction is ablaze You don't take sides it's frozen; a lasting abyss With the clarity of moments passed We can take the mountains as they come Take my hand

Fate holds fortune for the brave
