Bad Sign

He was born in a place where the shadows grow upon the grain Not far from here It was the time when dreams were taken away Oh, it flings him down to despair And he can't cry for what it might have been like He can't 'cos he has no more tears Now he is standing in silence, holding his breath Before they know it the blood runs red One "For the pain" Two "For the shame" Three and four "Just in case" No need for words Eight will be a secret Bad Sign He can't take back all the things he has done Redemption will remain He has frozen his fate and now it's far too late to find the reason to go on
