Hollow Point

I'm looking back at my life And what do I see? So many times of pain, sorrow and agony My life has fallen from grace

Ten years ago they used to say Let go, everything remains the same Piece by piece my dreams fell down The world is becoming colder

Memories lie six feet under Screaming for vengeance Holding tight on our lives Losing faith once again

Ten years ago they used to say Let go, everything remains the same Piece by piece my dreams fell down The world is becoming colder... everyday

Face the hollow point in me The hollow point in my soul once again

I bleed no tears I feel no sorrow I reborn through hate When I hold those dreams in my heart