What kind of a man is a man who lives in the kingdom of tyrants What kind of a man is a man who calls you with the voice of sirens That man hates everything in you and your existence That man takes everything from you and gives you nothingness

Still you keep crawling before his eyes Still you refuse to Refuse to reach into the light and the pattern keeps repeating itself

What kind of a man is a man who can blame someone else for his sins
What kind of a man is a man whose image becomes clear when darkness descends
That man does not have a name, some call him Master
That man does not give you choice
Still you feel some kind of attraction

God of Reptiles, Beware, God of Reptiles

You will betray yourself
You will hate yourself
You will lose yourself
You will see your finger on the trigger

You will see, you will feel
That your world is in flames
And everything you've got is emptiness
You will see, you will feel
That this is not a game
And your god is merciless