Cannibals

Diary of Dreams

Your charming voice is calling me And step by step you set me free My urge too strong my body weak The curse in mind for which I seek

These walls Were built to last Memories were always born here

Decades of youth And centuries of silence Welcome cannibals

Your dark embrace consoling me Your fading lights forgotten beauty And everything I see is taking strength Away from me Inhale the last one Why hesitate?

What is this violence you pray for You talk about science, biology and gods Now look me straight into the eye I have all you ever asked for
