

Grey The Blue

Diary of Dreams

Watch the shore
As the tide will never end
Feel the wind
As the clouds will breathe your name

Our faces pale and thin
Embraces cold and bare
We whisper lullabies
So tearful as we glare

Our faces pale and thin
Embraces cold and bare
We whisper lullabies
So tearful as we glare

When old companions say:
I'm here for you
When one by one they stray
I'll stay for you

When old companions say:
I'm here for you
When one by one they stray
I'll stay for you

Touch the sky
As the horizon greys the blue
Hold your breath
Can you feel my burden's weight?

You crave for your revenge
Are you disappointed too?
You wish you had the strength
To sacrifice your dream

When old companions say:
I'm here for you
When one by one they stray
I'll stay for you

When old companions say:
I'm here for you
When one by one they stray
I'll stay for you

The road to perdition
A dead ending dream
Will you paint the horizon
If it leads to the end?

It may not feel right
To leave us behind
But do you feel the relief?
Do you feel the despair?

When old companions say:
I'm here for you

When one by one they stray
I'll stay for you

When old companions say:
I'm here for you
When one by one they stray
I'll stay for you