

The Wedding

Diary of Dreams

You follow the path that you meant to avoid
A matter of time till an echo unfolds
What the next step might bring
You take a look back while your heartbeat is raging
To this song you sing.

When silence evolves into a deafening noise
When the blackening coat weaves a ceiling of darkness
When I speak the words that you wish me to say
When voices of sound come to life all around

I could never say these words to you
I could never doubt the way you do
I could never trace the steps for you
I could never live the way you do

Adrenaline pumping in every vein
I must go now and look for a new place to hide
You will chase me again I am certain of that
But be sure that the next time you will not succeed

I could never say these words to you
I could never doubt the way you do
I could never trace the steps for you
I could never live the way you do

The wedding! The wedding! The wedding! The wedding!

When you're begging for shelter don't knock on my door
When you say that you've changed you have done that before
When a tear in your eye - what a great alibi -
Tries to weaken my senses - shatter all that I've learned

I could never say these words to you
I could never doubt the way you do
I could never trace the steps for you
I could never live the way you do

I will never say these words to you
I will never doubt the way you do
I will never trace the steps for you
I will never live the way you do